The North Jersey Coast

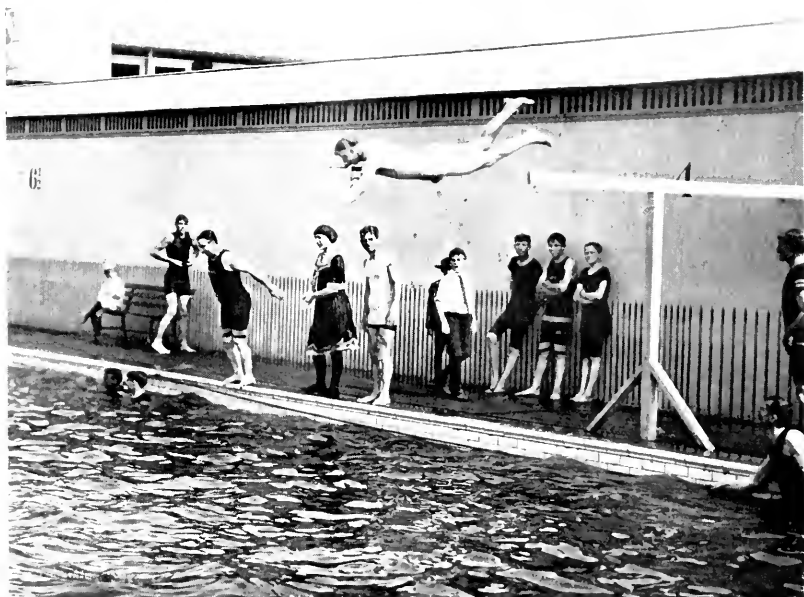

WHERE else in this glad land may one find so glorious a stretch of summer-time rest and beauty spots as the Northern coast of New Jersey from Atlantic Highlands to Point Pleasant? Where else such charmingly varied sources of vacation pleasures and sports, such uniformly delightful and diversified recreation joys as those to be found throughout the length and breadth of this wonderful coast?

No other coast is comparable with it, no other coast approaches its untold advantages, appropriated not only by myriads of Easterners but thousands from the far-off West.

The advantages of accessibility are always vital; the ease and comfort with which one may reach any one of the North Jersey shore resorts afford one of their chief attractions, only an hour or so of clean and restful riding by boat or train being required to take one there.

There is a railroad station for nearly every one of the twenty-five miles of shore line, which is almost continuously dotted with cities, towns and villages—a region resembling one great community, easily and pleasantly reached by the All Rail Lines and Sandy Hook Route fleet of steamers of the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

Of the latter means of transportation, much might be said, for it is one of the main attractions to the shore resorts. This fleet comprises the "Asbury Park," the "Monmouth" and the "Sandy Hook"—the speediest craft of their class afloat—which run at frequent intervals, throughout the summer, from foot of West Forty-second Street and foot of Cedar Street, New York, to Atlantic Highlands Pier, where connections are made with fast trains on the Sea Shore branch for all points on the Coast, as well as along the south shore of Raritan Bay.

The topographical location of the town of Atlantic Highlands is unique. Built on a magnificent headland which forms the northern extremity of the Highlands of Navesink, it presents a rarely magnificent marine perspective spreading eastward—Sandy Hook Bay, in the immediate foreground resembles a great lake with Sandy Hook Peninsula across its generous expanse; beyond, the Atlantic, with the Long Island shore in the distance.

Barely a step from the water's edge, with nothing but the Central's steel highway intervening, heavily wooded hills rise with towering abruptness, giving the town an aspect not unlike the City of the Cæsars. Beyond this rugged, formidable boundary, stream-traversed farm lands stretch to the southward. The bay and its coves afford exceptional shelter, and yachtsmen and aquatic sportsmen find it a delightful domain; bathing, sailing and motor boating number among the favored sports.

Highlands, another widely favored resort, is located under the very lee of the lighthouses, the smaller colonies at Hiltons and Water Witch being located between Highlands and Atlantic Highlands. The Navesink River, just above its confluence with the Shrewsbury, flows into Sandy Hook Bay at Highlands. Between these two streams runs the Rumson Road, one of the finest driveways in the East, and notable for the magnificent residences to which it gives access. The favorite spot for surf bathers from the adjoining communities is Highland Beach, just across the Navesink River; then come the delightful cottage colonies of Normandie, Sea Bright, Low Moor, and Galilee, boasting a few large hotels.

A JOLLY PARTY ON DEAL LAKE, ASBURY PARK.

Sea Bright, a fashionable watering place, is also said to have the largest fishing station on the coast—a fact which few of the guests at the big hotels suspect, unless they venture to explore the quaintly romantic “fishing village.”

Monmouth Beach, just below, is essentially a cottage community from which all mercantile business is excluded; it has an attractive inn, a new pavilion, and an exceptionally fine swimming pool.

Situated on a formidable bluff overlooking an attractive beach is Long Branch, a favored pleasure resort for over a century. Six miles long and two miles wide, this seaside city includes a large area of high and dry soil, not sand, where trees, lawns, hedges, flowers and shrubbery thrive luxuriously.

In the height of the season, Long Branch boasts a population numbering over 100,000 and points with pride to the veritable palaces which line the Ocean Boulevard for miles. Of late, many varied improvements have been made, all tending to sustain its reputation as one of America's foremost watering places. The celebrated boulevard, Ocean Avenue, skirts the edge of the bluff, its course being marked by a continuous procession of equipages, while the paralleling promenade presents a scene of gay pedestrians. West End and Hollywood, where the steamer trains take the tracks of the All Rail Route, are really parts of the city of Long Branch, and, like Elberon, are within city boundaries. Deal Beach and Allenhurst, still farther to the south are also cottage communities of the highest type.

And now for Asbury Park, known from coast to coast as the people's playground. Boasting a bathing beach of extraordinary excellence, a boardwalk that's become historic, music pavilions of unusual attractiveness, the big natatorium, Asbury Park unquestionably attracts pleasure seekers and year-round residents from every corner of the country, creating especially a distinctly cosmopolitan summer population. One cannot help wondering where the vast crowds come from, especially on Sundays or holidays, when the bathing reservations and boardwalk prove a constant revelation to the most casual observer.

Still another mental query arises when one contemplates the great number of hotels, large and small, in which Asbury Park houses its summer populace—one wonders how it is possible to find people enough to fill these hundreds of hotels and boarding places; yet it is. In this connection, especial interest is found in the erection on the beach front of the largest and most modern hotel on the entire North Jersey coast—the New Monterey, which will open its doors about July 1—as well as in the extensive enlargements and improvements of other hostelries.

An unusual phase of seaside resorts is Asbury's splendid possession of two fresh water lakes, Deal and Wesley, which form the city's northern and southern boundaries, with Sunset Lake midway between. Row boats, motor boats and canoes in great numbers are constantly plying the placid surface of Deal Lake, which has a remarkably picturesque setting.

Another feature of utmost importance every season is the Children's Carnival, held during the latter part of August, the baby parade having long since become an almost national event in the scope of the entrants and widespread interest. The present year, the customary water pageant will be held on Wesley Lake on July 25, instead of later in the season; the Deal Lake Carnival on August 9; the Queen's Coronation is set for August 14, and the Baby Parade for August 21. A new attraction this season—The Carnival of Neptune and Mardi Gras—is scheduled for Labor Day, September 2, while a big firemen's parade will be held September 5, 6 and 7.

Ocean Grove, located on the other side of Wesley Lake, in many ways is exactly the reverse of Asbury Park. Methodists originally founded it as a camping ground, and much of the old decorum and strict propriety are still retained. Its famous auditorium seats ten thousand persons, and contains the largest pipe organ in the country. Nearly a quarter million dollars has been expended in the erection of a 200-room boardwalk hotel on Wesley Lake.

Going in a southerly direction, we next touch Bradley Beach, which directly adjoins Ocean Grove. Avon follows, then Belmar, which in addition to its ocean front, enjoys the unnumbered advantages of Shark River, famed for its crabbing and sailing. A prettily wooded spot, Como, separates the town from Spring Lake. The latter, often termed the "Newport of New Jersey," is notable for its magnificent summer homes and the fashionable gaieties of its hotel and cottage residents.

Sea Girt, our next stop, has long been known as the summer encampment of the New Jersey National Guard, as well as the summer capital of the State.

Manasquan follows next on the shore, then Point Pleasant, that happy combination of ocean on one side and the broad Manasquan River on the other.

To return to the Central's steel highway—the first point on the All Rail Route of the Central which appeals to the summer vacationist is Sewaren, beautifully situated on a bluff overlooking Staten Island Sound, and trebly blest with a sheltered harbor for all who indulge in water recreations, especially rowing and motor boating.

At Perth Amboy, the same natural conditions prevail; it is probably one of the oldest shipping ports on the Atlantic Seaboard, South Amboy, just across the river, showing the same advantages.

The same is also true of Morgan, or Lawrence Harbor, at the mouth of Cheesequake Creek, where fish swarm.

A highly prosperous farming community, the next point of interest, is Matawan, located at the junction of the New York and Long Branch Railroad and the Freehold and Atlantic Highlands Division of the Central.

Just to the southeast lies Hazlet, another farming center, while Middletown, of Revolutionary associations, also enjoys rare agricultural honors.

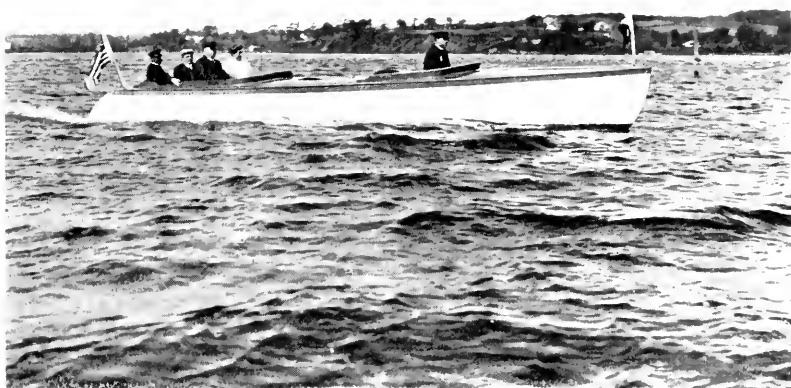

YACHT LANDING—POINT PLEASANT.

Following the steel trail a bit farther we encounter another delightful and historic town—Red Bank. Beautifully situated on the banks of the Navesink River, more commonly known as the North Shrewsbury, Red Bank affords practically every form of water sport—rowing, sailing, motor boating, etc. The river gives a big yield of fish and crabs. The shore of the Shrewsbury and other parts of the town have a number of very pretentious homes, while the famous Rumson Road, leading hence to Sea Bright, is but one of the picturesque drives hereabouts.

In point of aquatic sports and diversions, the charming town of Little Silver, on the North Shrewsbury, ably holds her own, many residents owning private docks.

Branchport, the northern section of the city of Long Branch, is on the same stream, and enjoys all the advantages of the other river resorts. Pleasure Bay, famous for its clambakes, draws many from this vicinity. From Branchport, the All Rail Route goes on to the Main station at Long Branch, thence to West End and Hollywood and the junction with the Sea Shore Branch.

Returning again to the "steel trail" at Matawan and following it in an easterly direction, we come again to Atlantic Highlands, while a southerly course from Matawan leads to Freehold. The line of Raritan Bay is followed through a wonderfully fertile and productive farming area, and in addition, the attractions of the bay shore, both giving exceptionally attractive facilities for summer-time outings. On this branch are Keyport, Keansburg, Port Monmouth and Belford.

Freehold, the county seat of historic Monmouth, is a particularly attractive spot for all devotees of truly rural life. It is a centre of one of the finest agricultural districts.

ATLANTIC CITY'S FAMOUS BOARDWALK.

The South Jersey Coast

THESE are many seekers for vacation haunts who prefer to leave the "big city" farther in their wake than is possible should they choose the more accessible resorts of the northern coast of New Jersey, and to this class—and their name appears to be legion—the more remote communities of the South Jersey Coast appeal most strongly. Of these, Atlantic City, Ocean City, Sea Isle City and Cape May constitute a famous quartette. And of the four, Atlantic City, in point of popularity and patronage stands a pre-eminent leader. A fifth famous resort—Beach Haven—is perhaps more in a class by itself, especially with regard to geographical location. It is built on still another island off the coast—six miles is the distance—but lies some fourteen miles to the north of Atlantic City, and is approached by a different route. (See Chapter "The Sportsman's Paradise.")

Built upon an island seven miles at sea, with four miles of beach to the southeast, Atlantic City enjoys throughout the entire summer the cooling breezes that sweep from the broad Atlantic, the kindly Gulf Stream, laden with the warmth of the tropics, tempering the atmosphere in winter.

Some consider the magnificent bathing beach—one of the finest on the entire Eastern Coast—to be this sea isle's chief charm; others regard the four mile Boardwalk, with its almost ceaseless activity, as the salient source of popularity; still others look upon the cosmopolitan character of its hotels and social life as the all powerful drawing card.

Yet 'tis something more than a mere fairyland of lights and nighttime glories; each day's return but serves to reveal new wonders, substantial, ever fascinating, alluring charms unknown in other places. From the countless atliers and bazaars with their dazzlingly beautiful, and uncommon wares, to music's ever delightful attractions and the great steel piers, a ceaseless round of activity is possible to the most sated pleasure seeker. For the one who seeks isolation unmarred by worldly clamor, there is abundant chance to revel in the soothing roar of breaking billows—of a truth, this city by the sea enjoys rare vantage points in its broad expanse of matchless ocean shore.

In this vast array, a daily average of some 300,000 visitors is sheltered during the busy season—indeed, one chief reason for the continuous success of Atlantic City is the untiring enterprise and efficiency of its hotel men.

As to the train service—there is none better, the Central Railroad of New Jersey making the trip from New York in a little over three hours and taking the traveler through miles of pines, and highly cultivated farm lands.

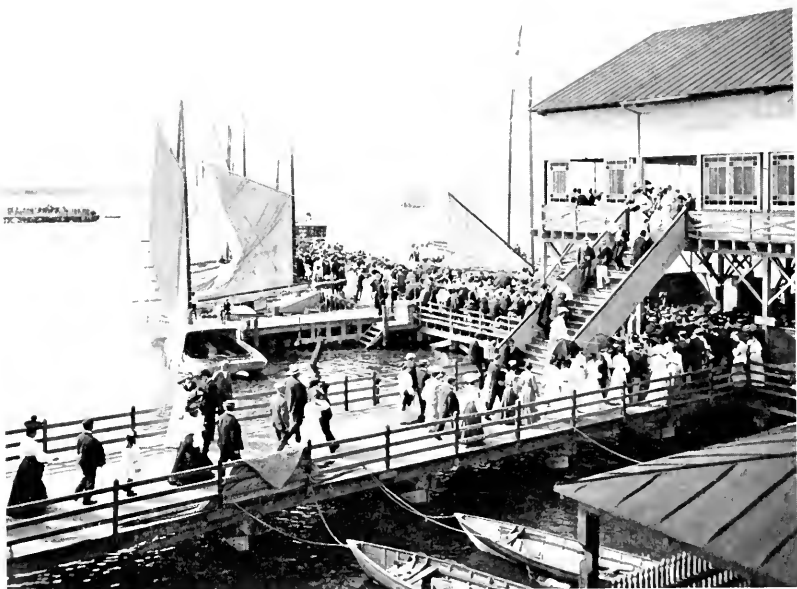

AND ONE OF THE BIG BOARDWALK HOTELS.

Although Atlantic City is the principal year-'round resort on the Coast, the entire southern shore of New Jersey is one vast summer-time playground, every section from Atlantic City to Cape May being thronged with visitors in search of rest and recreation.

And now for another delightful glimpse of a thoroughly happy resting place by the sea. This time, 'tis Ocean City, a name that tells the tale, for it is virtually in the sea. The lower end of the island on which it is located, is connected with the coast by low ground, permitting the Jersey Central in conjunction with the Philadelphia and Reading to run trains direct to Ocean City, excellent service from New York and Philadelphia being maintained.

The pleasure seeker certainly has little more to ask of this splendidly situated place. With the Atlantic as a frontage and Great Egg Harbor 'twixt it and the mainland, with its own Boardwalk and splendid bathing beach, with every imaginable outdoor land and water sport, with its numerous hotels of undeniable excellence, and scores of moderate-rental cottages, Ocean City justly lays claim to every summer-time advantage. Sailing craft and motor boats of every type fairly cover the waters of Egg Harbor Bay, which offers the safest sort of harbor for the large yachts whose owners delight in deep-sea cruising. The devotee of outdoor sports is in his element here; baseball games, tennis tournaments, athletic meets, boat races, etc., are popular and plentiful.

Sea Isle City, a thoroughly progressive place with excellent hotel accommodations and many cottages, is favored with the same excellent railroad service that all these shore resorts receive from the New Jersey Central and Reading Railroads. The famous Corson's sheephead fishing grounds, as well as a labyrinth of smaller waterways, teeming with shellfish of every description, make Sea Isle City an ideal resort for fishing parties. Naturally, there is splendid yachting both in the open ocean and in many inlets and estuaries, which afford quiet sailing and safe anchorage.

Age often adds enchantment to a world-favored recreation centre. Cape May, situated at the very jumping off point of Southern Jersey, flanked by the Atlantic on one side and Delaware Bay, is one of the oldest seaside resorts in America; in ante-bellum days, before Newport was known beyond the borders of Rhode Island, it was a regular sojourning place for Southern planters en route for and returning from historic Saratoga. Its old time honors and well earned glories have not been robbed a whit by reason of the multiplicity of seaside resorts.

Welcome, ye shades! ye bowery thickets hail!
Ye lofty Pines, ye venerable Oaks!
Ye Ashes wild, resounding o'er the steep!
Delicious in your shelter to the soul.—THOMSON.

In the Jersey Foothills

AND now for a study in contrasts—from the coast line of the majestic Atlantic, we flit inland to browse among Jersey's gloriously inspiring, rest-giving, peace-bestowing vacation land among the foothills. A typical vacation region, indeed, Northern New Jersey offers the devotee of country life some of America's fairest landscapes, stretching uninterruptedly from Somerville to Phillipsburg, and traversed by the main line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. The small towns and villages with which this section is dotted, breathe an atmosphere of perpetual content, affording a capital antidote for all tired, trouble-burdened city dwellers.

In a word, 'tis a wondrous foothills country, lacking nothing in summer-time entertainment. From an agricultural standpoint, its fertility and productiveness have made this region famous. The crops grow—so do the people, whether "vacationists," commuters or farmers, the latter reaping plentiful harvests from the soil for a livelihood, and incidental and well-earned harvests of coin from the summer boarders. Many hundreds of farmers are living their life in this inspiring region just as Nature intended; large, spacious homes, providing comfortable shelter, fresh eggs, vegetables, rich milk, cream and butter, providing for the sustenance of one's immediate family, besides allowing a margin for profitable sales to the families of others. Little wonder that the Foothills country of New Jersey has been termed "one succession of garden spots in the Garden State of the Union." Nor is it strange that city folk long for the recreations of the foothills and their rejuvenating influences—the "elixir of the great outdoors."

HIGH BRIDGE, FROM A JERSEY CENTRAL FLYER.

Having entered this garden country, and speeding on beyond Somerville in a comfortable Jersey Central train, one cannot but note the extraordinary beauty of the scenery, particularly at North Branch, the second stop, where the "North Branch" of the Raritan River merrily runs its course down its little valley, while to the westward the "everlasting hills" begin to lift themselves into view.

At White House, we catch our first glimpse of the beautiful Rockaway Valley, with its extensive farms and peach orchards. From here, a branch road runs to Mendham through a succession of small villages and a well watered and wooded country of peculiar charm. Those who plan to board a week or a season will find any number of places hereabouts where farm life may be enjoyed at its best.

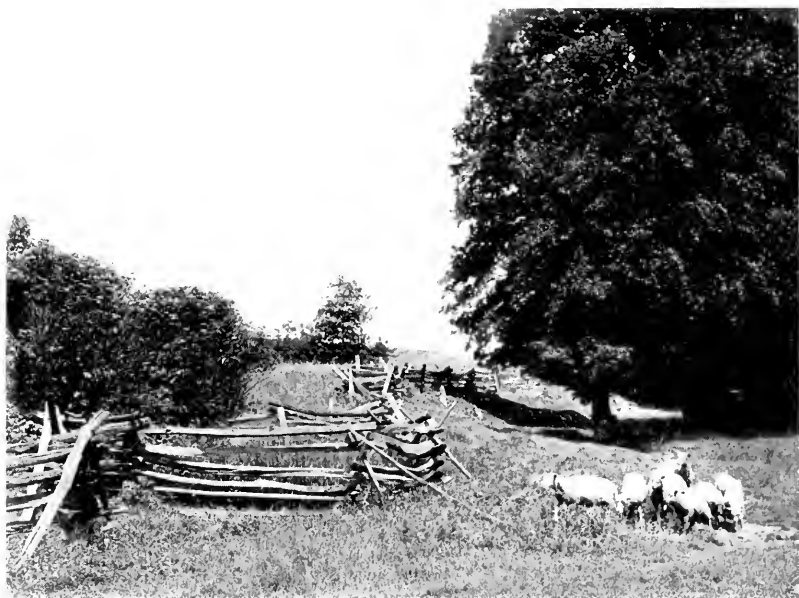

The next place on the Main Line is the village of

THE NORTH BRANCH OF THE RARITAN.

Lebanon, nestling peacefully in the valley bearing the same name. Its orchards and dairies literally make it a country of "peaches and cream," interspersed with delightful vistas on which to feast the eye. Annandale, a neighboring community similar to that of Lebanon, is the station for Clinton, proving an ideal vacation spot of which it is the center. Thoroughly romantic walks, delightful drives and splendid angling and hunting are among its allurements.

We next encounter the slightly more ambitious though equally rural community of High Bridge, large enough to undertake some manufacturing interests. Fine game, delightful drives and wooded hills make it a favorite haunt of the sportsman and the city refugee. Westward from High Bridge, the "steel trail" leads us into the Musconetcong Valley; as it's a steady upward climb, the next fifteen miles give us a most entrancing birdseye view of the surrounding country. The cosily nestled villages on sun-lit fertile hillsides mingle with the farmlands 'round them.

"The top of the World," on this division, otherwise known as Hampton, treats us to one of the splendid scenic panoramas for which this attractive country has long been famed. From this summit of beauty and grandeur begins an easy descent to Phillipsburg in the Delaware's famous valley. If the day is a clear one, we're able to trace the valleys of the Lehigh and Delaware Rivers, a distance of twenty-five miles or more. The town of Phillipsburg lies on the border of the State, in picturesque conjunction with Easton, Pa., its neighbor across the Delaware.

These fleeting glimpses only suggest the beauties of a section that is becoming better known each year to lovers of truly rural life. Were we to stop a bit, we would be well received, for summer visitors are always welcome.

High Bridge to Lake Hopatcong

ANOTHER INVASION—a peaceful one at that, but see to it you're well armed with cartridge films and trusty lens; for we're entering the much vaunted "Camera Land," prepared to capture many of the memory-haunting beauty nooks and sylvan glens that abound in and around the Black and Raritan Rivers, Schooley's Mountain, Budd's Lake, and far-famed "Hopatcong."

If a pine-clad plains mark southerly New Jersey, hills and valleys serve to accentuate the beauties of the northern part of this wondrous state, a fact we're quick to notice on our invading tour via the Jersey Central's High Bridge Branch which breaks away from the Main Line at High Bridge.

From the very first, the train begins to climb, every turn of the rails opening new vistas of enchantment—winding brooks, crystal in their clarity, separating rocky glens and well-tilled, fertile farms.

Califon, a popular resort is just at the foot of "Califon Mountain," while Middle Valley, equally well known, lies in a more open position. One of the old-time settlements of this section is German Valley, a summer community of some importance; here, stages for Schooley's Mountain meet all trains, providing a delightful cross country drive over well kept roads to the hotel and cottage colony that tops the famous hill. Budd's Lake, a sheet of pure spring water on a high plateau, is the objective point of many a delightful side trip from Flanders. Five miles in circumference, the shores of this attractive body of water provide sites for hotels, cottages and bungalows that win splendid warm weather patronage; camp colonies also cluster here.

Farther north, and at continually higher altitudes, come

Ledgewood and Kenvil, then Dover—the largest town in this particular section, where several thousand “fixed” inhabitants increase to many thousands more during the outing season. Just a bit beyond, we encounter the quaint old town of Rockaway, nestling in the lovely valley of the river, from which it takes its name; after one final, rather lengthy ascent, skirting the edge of the precipitous mountainside, and viewing the broad sweep of the valley below, we reach Lake Hopatcong, that gem of inland lakes set a full thousand feet above tide water—“Nature, pure and undefiled.”

Famed for years as one of the finest mountain lake resorts in the East, so accessible that many thousands visit it each summer, its chief charm lies in its unspoiled beauty, every picturesque spot having been left as nearly as possible as man originally found it. Little wonder it has been called "Lake George of New Jersey," though as a certain camper put it, "I can't for the life of me see why Lake George should not be called the 'Hopatcong of New York.'" Its goodly size—ten miles long, one to three miles wide—its crystal clearness, and its surrounding wooded hills all contribute to its extraordinary loveliness.

While Hopatcong boasts of numerous hotels and places of entertainment, outdoor life is exceedingly popular, the lake shores and the many islands being dotted with campers and outing parties. 'Tis an angler's paradise, too, fine catches rewarding the small army of enthusiasts that flock thither. Then, too, there is no end to the exciting "life afloat;" motor boats, sail boats, skiffs, and canoes abound while the annual regatta and water carnival is the event.

Notable among Nature's beautiful gifts to Hopatcong is the flower-clad Floating Island, which always remains a foot above the water's surface (irrespective of the height of the water in the lake). It is covered with a luxuriant growth of flowers, its banks are lined with wild roses.

Then there are the Sister Islands, Halsey Island, and Raccoon Island, all luxuriantly beautiful with shrubs and wild flowers, all generously patronized by picnickers and boating parties.

Any number of entrancing spots such as Bear Point, Cupid's Cascade, Devil's Staircase, or Bishop's Falls, lure the venturesome pathfinder on to delightful exploring jaunts. For wheelmen, autoists, or equestrians, there are innumerable cool and shaded roads, bordered by luxuriant alders and lichen and wild flowers of quaint and fantastic fashioning, majestically canopied by interlacing boughs of stately firs and pines and chestnuts.

Lehigh and Wyoming Valleys

WHY cross the "big pond" for scenery and mountain grandeur, when the "Switzerland of America" lies so near at hand? One need only penetrate the picturesque and historical valleys of the Lehigh and the Wyoming to discover scenic charms rivaling in beauty and distinction those of far-off Europe.

Crossing the Delaware River from Phillipsburg to Easton, the Central Railroad of New Jersey enters the great coal producing state of Pennsylvania, and for over a hundred and twenty miles, follows these delightful valleys.

For seventy miles or more, the Jersey Central's steel highway traverses the valley of the Lehigh River in a northeasterly direction from Easton, serving such cities as Bethlehem, with its vast steel works and historic Lehigh University; Allentown, with all its varied interests; and Mauch Chunk, with its coal mines. The first railroad ever built in the United States is Mauch Chunk's famous "Switchback;" originally a gravity road to carry coal from the top of Summit Hill to the river level, it has been transformed into a veritable passenger railroad, annually carrying thousands of delighted sightseers speedily and safely to the crest of the 1,600 foot mountain, where a marvelously beautiful landscape is spread in all directions.

Yet another marvel of Nature is White Haven, popular alike for its scenic wonders and its health-restoring fame, the latter due to the surprisingly dry quality of the air with which this high altitude is blest.

Still pressing on—for we're only taking "flying peeps"—we reach the crest of Mt. Nescopeck, but it's been a steady climb of ten miles or more to this, the highest point between New York and Buffalo. One of the most celebrated summer resorts in the famous Blue Ridge region, Mt. Nescopec, is entirely given over to the entertainment of summer guests. Hence the life centers in and about the large and fashionable Glen Summit Springs Hotel, perched like an eagle's eyrie on the mountain's crest.

From the crest of Nescopec, there is a gradual decline into the "Vale of Wyoming"—renowned in song and story—and the far-famed hill country between the Susquehanna, the Delaware and the pleasant, well watered valley of the Lehigh. The city of Wilkesbarre is charmingly situated in the very heart of the Wyoming Valley, the city which the "Massacre of Wyoming" in 1778 has immortalized. The railroad invades this truly romantic country for a stretch of twenty-four miles to the division terminal at Scranton, one of the rapidly growing cities of this great State.

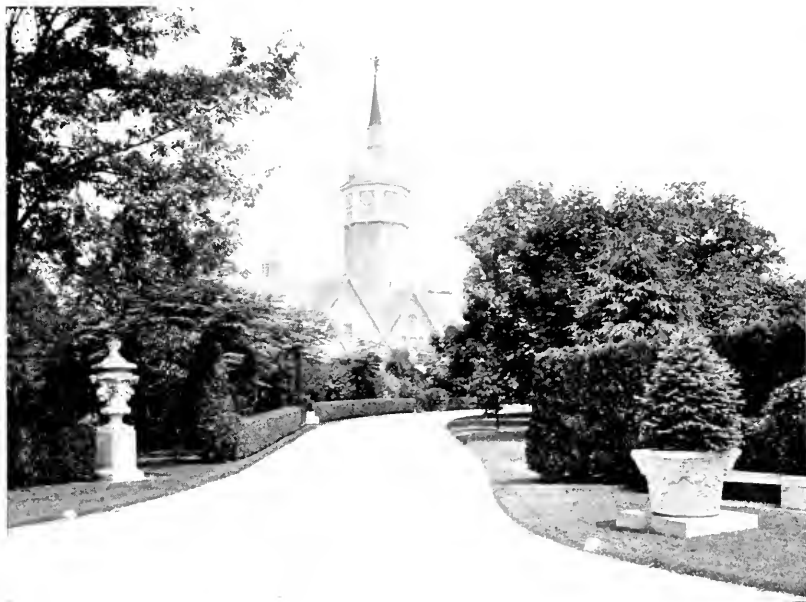

In the Heart of the Pine Belt

ONLY ninety minutes run from New York, thanks to Jersey Central celerity, and we're at Lakewood, the very core of a most remarkable pine belt—that health-blest tract of many thousand acres of stately pines. The sandy soil, its nearness to the Atlantic Coast, and its ozone-laden air suggest the far famed shores of Lake Superior; in fact, the climate is a wonderful combination of southern mildness and northern vigor; the porosity of the soil permitting quick absorption of water after every rainfall, leaving the ground dry and the atmosphere free from every particle of moisture.

Obviously, Lakewood's temperature is ten or more degrees higher in winter than in New York or Philadelphia, permitting almost unlimited opportunities for open-air and out-of-door sports throughout the entire fall, winter and spring—a powerful attraction to the leisure class as well as to those of moderate means. Several golf courses are in the neighborhood, while driving, riding, motoring, cross-country runs to hounds, and polo tournaments offer popular and frequent diversions, the latter being held on the grounds of Georgian Court, the palatial estate of George J. Gould.

Lake Carasaljo, Lakewood's beautiful water gem, is two and a half miles long and a half mile wide, the irregular shores being skirted by the ubiquitous pines, through which a romantic drive winds its way entirely 'round the lake. Impressive Cathedral Drive forms the setting of many a poetic lay.

Spaciousness and luxury characterize the hotels of Lakewood, while the cottage colony is large and of considerable importance, including many magnificent private estates.

ENTRANCE TO GEORGIAN COURT—LAKEWOOD.

The superior transportation service afforded by the Jersey Central is quite a factor in the sustainment of this resort's popularity; the perfectly constructed roadbed insures a safe high speed, while the parlor car and coach equipment and use of smokeless hard coal make traveling a positive pleasure.

A flit of eight miles to the south of Lakewood brings us to Lakehurst, a close relative of the older resort. While its village is not so large, its hotels so numerous, its cottage colony far less extensive, it enjoys in fullest measure the same salubrious winter climate, the same dry, sandy soil, the same belt of health-bestowing pines. Well within this wondrous pine belt, miles of beautiful walks and bridle paths through pine-carpeted woods radiate.

Horicon Lake, a couple of miles in circuit, picturesque and forest edged, marks Lakehurst's southern border.

The Sportsman's Paradise

THE reputation of Barnegat Bay as the best fishing and hunting grounds on the Atlantic Coast dates back to 1609, when Henry Hudson landed at Barnegat and found Indians in great numbers enjoying these long and favored twin sports. In fact, Old Barnegat, with its three hundred and fifty square miles of quiet and safe waters behind the barrier of Long Beach, has been recognized for generations as a paradise for sportsmen. Almost every known species of the finny tribe inhabit its waters, and for at least three-quarters of the year, there is the finest fishing in the bay, while duck and snipe enthusiasts regard it as the best hunting grounds in all the Eastern states, during spring and fall. Weakfish, bluefish and striped bass run from May to November.

Surf fishing attracts many seasoned veterans in this time-honored sport, and famous individual catches provide many an interesting chapter of the region's legends. Sea bass are caught both in the bay and outside the inlet, while channel bass and drumfish may be found close to the beach; sand bars and grass islands are the home of wild fowl of every variety. One of the unique and distinctive features of good old Barnegat is its houseboat life, and craft of this description may be secured for a week or a season at a reasonable outlay. Catboats, sloops, as well as power craft may be rented at reasonable rates anywhere about the bay.

It's "the" place for "briny sports!"

Other points of interest on Barnegat Bay are Toms River, to the north of Barnegat, and Beach Haven to the south, with Pinewald, Lanoka, Forked River, Ostrom, and Waretown intervening, each possessing its own individuality and charm. The Toms River and Barnegat Branch of the Central Railroad of New Jersey provides ample transportation for this section of the coast, and frequent trains make the entire bayside readily accessible.

When the peculiar natural position of Beach Haven is considered—the Atlantic on one side and land-locked Little Egg Harbor separating the island from the mainland—it is easy to realize its perfect adaptability to the pastimes and pleasures of the summer sojourner. Surf-bathing, fishing, shooting, crabbing, sailing, yacht-racing, swimming—a brief summary of the sports the nearby waters provide. Two splendid hotels and a goodly number of smaller houses shelter the warm weather visitors to whom quick service from New York is afforded by way of the New Jersey Central to Whitings, where close connection for Beach Haven is made.

Hotels and Boarding Houses on the New Jersey Central

The list of hotels and boarding houses which follows embraces the most accurate information possible to obtain from the proprietors or managers.

The hotel and boarding house rates quoted are for American Plan.

The railroad fares and distances are from New York. Single and excursion fares only are shown. For fifty-trip, monthly and season ticket rates, to points within the commuting zone, apply to nearest ticket office, or write to General Passenger Department, New York.
